Canadian compagny sells cans of fresh air to smog chocking China.

it looks like a stylish product for hair but it's not . it's Vitality air, fresh air for stuffy noses living in polluted environments.

This is how low humanity has sunk! Even air has become a commodity, a commodity that can be sold at high price, especially to nations like China where residents are choking in smog and air pollution.

One can of clean air and oxygen from the beautiful R.M in Canada can cost from about fourteen to twenty dollars ! only.... With prices like that , who will be able to afford to breathe ?

The first batch of 500 canisters (was) sold out within 2 weeks, mainly bought by affluent chinese women , who buy them for their families or as a xmas present .

The canadian compagny is not even the first to have this idea. The Chinese themselves were the first one selling clean air whith sky-high profits. Beijing 's artist Liang Kegang sold clean air from southern France to his desperate countrymen after a trip there last year. In 2013 multi millionaire Chen Guangbiao sold air from less industrialized and polluted regions in China to more polluted places for 5 Yen, that's less than eighty cents.

At least that was cheaper...
