Gamers 'leaving consoles behind to visit Scotland'

By
DAVID O'LEARY

Published: 21:19 Tuesday 29 December 2015

VisitScotland has identified a new tourism trend – the “consoliday” (console-holiday) – people choosing to experience in real life the landscapes they see virtually before them within the games, or wanting to visit the country in which the game was conceived.

5 Minecraft fans turned out in their thousands to catch a glimpse of YouTube legend Stampy the Cat in Dundee last month, and with big operators, such as Start The Adventure already offering “gaming adventure tours”, the national tourism organisation is hoping consolidays could be as popular as ‘set-jetting’, where people visit a destination after seeing it in a film.

10 Scotland features in a number of games such as Grand Theft Auto (the Forth bridges and other destinations), Call of Duty: Ghosts (Stonehaven/Dunnottar Castle), Tomb Raider III (Loch Ness), Project Gotham Racing 2 (Edinburgh), and the Tiger Woods PGA Tour series.

15 In addition to being inspired by on-screen landscapes, fans also visit Scotland to see where their favourite games were created in cities such as Dundee and Edinburgh.

20 Dundee is known as the birthplace of the Scottish games industry with some of the world’s biggest titles developed there, including Lemmings and Grand Theft Auto. The city currently hosts numerous design studios and Abertay University is famous for its world-leading video-game development courses.

25 Edinburgh is the home of Rockstar North – developer of the successful Grand Theft Auto series – and many make the trip to the capital to get their photo taken outside its head office which is now on Holyrood Road, beside the Scottish Parliament.

30 Malcolm Roughead, chief executive of VisitScotland said: “The Year of Innovation, Architecture and Design 2016 is an opportunity to shine a spotlight on Scotland’s fascinating creative achievements. Scotland’s video games industry is a thriving, internationally acclaimed sector which punches well above its weight and is a major contributor to our country’s economy.”

Hale Farm & Village annual Civil War Reenactment & Encampment

Posted on August 1, 2016 by halefarm

When hundreds of Civil War reenactors come to Hale Farm & Village<sup>1</sup> on Aug. 13, they will again bring their uniforms, equipment, horses, and military protocol to recreate America's defining historical period.

The reenactment weekend will be just as meaningful for them as it will be for spectators, as they get to experience a taste of what Civil War soldiers endured.

Akron resident Chris Smith, who has reenacted Civil War battles for the past 27 years, most of them at Hale Farm, likes to use the term "magic moments" to describe scenes that happen unexpectedly during a battle reenactment weekend.

When Chris and his fellow reenactors visit Hale Farm, they camp out overnight on Saturday and use the same amenities that were available to Civil War soldiers, such as cooking breakfast and brewing coffee over a campfire. Every detail, including the tents they sleep in, are made to look as real as the resources Civil War soldiers used in their day.

"For me one of the greatest moments of any reenactment is at sunrise, when it's damp or foggy," Chris said. "The scenery looks like a painting." And unlike a virtual game on Xbox, these magic moments take your breath away, according to Chris.

This year's event will involve recreating the Battle of Big Bethel, an early skirmish in the Civil War that took place near Newport News, Virginia on June 10, 1861.

For Mike Church who rides in the Sixth Ohio Cavalry, Civil War reenacting brings awe and memorable interaction with the crowds. "Talking to the crowd never gets boring, not even 30 years later", Mike said. He's been participating in reenactments since he was 17 and learned to ride a horse specifically for these events.

Besides educating kids on Civil War-era weaponry, cavalry, strategies, and cooking, the reenactors have taken their passion for history and turned it into lifelong friendships. "It's like close family," Mike said. "There are no socioeconomic barriers. There are small-time millionaires, minimum wage earners, and everything in between serving side by side in the same unit. We're just one big family."
